

Obama

Obama, Obama
Obama—can we start believing again?
Obama—the journey is long, but it's time to begin
Obama—can we start believing again?
Obama—time to be leaders, each woman, each man
Can we change the world?—yes we can, yes we can

Time to keep faith with what once made us great
Join the new great debate between choosing and fate
The hour is near midnight and all is not well
If our will is alive, then it's still not too late
For the meal to be laid on the hungry child's plate
For the student to walk through the future's bright gate
To tell the round world we will wipe clean the slate
Learn the lesson—that unjust war just fans the hate
And a pause to reflect doesn't mean—hesitate
Make no bargain with fear, yet fear not to negotiate

Oh—can we walk the talk?
Help us win back our country, Barack

Obama, Obama

Though the lines may stretch around the block
We will win back our country, Barack

Obama—can we start believing again?
Obama—the journey is long, but it's time to begin
Obama—can we start believing again?
Obama—time to be leaders, each woman, each man
Can we change the world?—yes we can, yes we can
Can we change the world?—yes we can, yes we can